CAMBRIDGE PUBLIC LIBRARY:

ITS HISTORY.

Fiske 1926.

THE Cambridge Public Library had its origin in the Cambridge Athenæum, which was incorporated in February, 1849, for the purpose, as is stated in its charter, "of establishing and maintaining in the City of Cambridge a lyceum, public library, reading-room, lectures on scientific and literary subjects, and for promoting such other kindred objects as the members of the corporation shall from time to time deem advisable and proper."

In October, 1850, a lot of land, containing ten thousand square feet, and situated on the corner of Main and Pleasant Streets, in Cambridgeport, was presented to the corporation by Mr. Edmund T. Dana, of Cambridge, and accepted at a legal meeting held on the twenty-fifth of that month. The deed of gift contained the following conditions: 1st. That the corporation should, within two years, erect upon the land, and complete, so as to be fit for occupation, a building suitable for the purposes of the Cambridge Athenæum, as set forth in the act whereby the same was incorporated. 2d. That the land and building (with the exception of the lower story and cellar of the building, which might be used for other purposes) should be used forever for the purposes of a lyceum, public library, reading-room, lectures on scientific and literary subjects, and for promoting other kindred objects, as set forth in the Act of Incorporation.

In the following year an edifice, named the "Athenæum," was erected upon the land presented by Mr. Dana, at a cost of about $18,000; it was dedicated and opened to the public in November, 1851. It appears, then, that one of the chief objects of this corporation in obtaining a charter, and of Mr. Dana in his gift of land to the corporation, was the establishment and maintenance in the City of Cambridge of a Public Library. A reading-room, which was also contemplated, was abandoned, after trial, for want of support.

In April, 1855, the Directors received official notice that the late Mr. James Brown. of Watertown, had bequeathed books to the value of $1,000 to the Athenæum, and had directed his executors to purchase and deliver the same, agreeably to a list to be furnished by the Directors.

Immediate measures were taken to establish the contemplated Library. A commodious room was set apart and furnished in the Athenæum building; a code of Regulations was adopted; and a Catalogue was prepared and printed of the books received from the bequest of Mr. Brown, and of the few volumes contributed from other sources. The cost of printing the Catalogue, and the other incidental expenses, were defrayed by a timely donation of $250, made for that purpose by the executors of the will of the late Mr. Thomas Dowse, of Cambridge. After various delays incident to such undertakings, the Library was opened for the delivery of books in November, 1857. Miss C. F. Orne was appointed Librarian. According to the Regulations, any person residing in Cambridge, known to the Librarian, or recommended by any citizen thus known, was entitled to the use of the Library, upon the payment of one dollar per annum, and subscribing a promise to comply with the regulations adopted for its management.

In March, 1858, the Athenæum Corporation disposed of its real estate and personal property to the City of Cambridge. The Library was also transferred to the City; the City obligating itself to contribute not less than $300 per annum, for the term of fifteen years, for its support and increase, and to maintain it forever for the use of the inhabitants of Cambridge.

In consideration of this obligation assumed by the City, Mr. Dana released the Athenæum Corporation from the conditions contained in his deed of gift. The "Athenæum" thenceforth became the "City Hall;" and the "Athenæum Library," now the property of the City, received the name of the "Dana Library."

The intentions of Mr. Dana in relation to the Library, which till 1879 bore his name, are evident from the following clause, being clause No. 23, of his last will and testament: —

"I give to Edmund T. Hastings and to William W. Wellington, and to the survivor of them, fifteen thousand dollars, in trust, to appropriate the same in such manner as I may by any instrument in writing under my hand appoint."

In a separate instrument, bearing the same date as the will, the testator did direct as follows: —

> "To Edmund T. Hastings and William W. Wellington, or whosoever else may execute the trust created by the twenty-third clause of my will:
> "The sum of fifteen thousand dollars, bequeathed by the said twenty-third clause, is to be paid over, if and whenever my trustees or trustee shall deem it expedient to do so, to the City of Cambridge, to be held by the said City in trust, as an entire fund, the income thereof to be appropriated annually, forever, to the increase and support of the library of the Cambridge Athenæum: provided, however, that if and whenever my said trustees or trustee shall be of opinion that it is not expedient that the said sum of fifteen thousand dollars should be so appropriated, the same to be paid over to my heirs at law; and provided, further, that the said capital sum be paid over, either to said City of Cambridge, or to my heirs at law, within three years from my decease.
> EDM. T. DANA."

The Trustees appointed by the will, in an instrument signed by them and transmitted to the City Council, signified their intention to pay this sum of fifteen thousand dollars to the City of Cambridge, whenever they should receive it from Mr. Dana's executor.

It unfortunately happened that the instrument referred to in Mr. Dana's will and copied above, though signed by Mr. Dana, was not duly attested. It was therefore contended by the residuary legatees, "that, by the twenty-third clause in the will, nothing passed to the City of Cambridge, the same not being named as legatee; and it not being competent for a testator, by a duly executed will, to create for himself a power to dispose of his estate to legatees by another instrument not duly executed as a will or codicil." The case was brought, by the administrator, with the will annexed, before the Supreme Court of this State, which, after a full hearing, decided that the twenty-third clause in the will, with the unattested instrument signed by Mr. Dana, did not "create a valid bequest to the City of Cambridge."

Thus were the generous intentions of Mr. Dana frustrated; and the munificent donation, which he designed for the Library, passed into the hands of his residuary legatees.

In 1874 the Library was made free to the public, and in June of that year Miss Orne was succeeded by the present Librarian.

In 1875 the Library was arranged by subjects, and a new catalogue was issued. In 1879, by vote of the City Government, the name of the library was changed to the Cambridge Public Library, thus identifying it more closely with the other public institutions of the city.

The catalogue printed in 1875 was followed by five supplements, and these by six bulletins. The library had increased, meanwhile, from seven to eighteen thousand volumes; and in 1885 the need of a new catalogue had become imperative. An additional appropriation of two thousand dollars being granted in 1886 for the purpose, this catalogue has been prepared.

The present need of the Library is a suitable building of its own, for which it appeals to the generosity of the citizens of Cambridge.

He shall, once a year, immediately after the last Saturday in November, present to the Trustees a detailed report of the condition of the Library, embracing the number of volumes, and such other facts as the Trustees may require.

THE CATALOGUE.

The present catalogue contains about eighteen thousand five hundred volumes. It has been prepared by Miss Lizzie A. Williams, from the Librarian's card catalogue.

The books are entered by author, and title or subject, most of them appearing twice. Histories and works of travel will be found under the countries of which they treat, and also under the surnames of their authors. Biographies appear under the surnames of subject and of author. Works of fiction may be found under their authors, or the first word of their titles not an article.

The subject entries are limited to those which seemed indispensable, and include, Archæology, Architecture, Arctic explorations, Art, Astronomy, Bible, Biography (general works), Botany, Chemistry, Christianity, Cookery, Costume, Drainage, Drawing, Education, Etiquette, Electricity, Fish and Fishing, Games, Gardening, Geology, Health, History (general works), Home, Literature (general works), Music, Mythology, Ornithology, Painting, Physics, Political economy, Religion, Socialism, Steam engine, Telegraph, Voice culture, Woman, Zoölogy, and others less important.

An author's name is followed (1) by his biographies, (2) by criticisms upon his works, and (3) by the works themselves.

The possessive form of a word is made to directly follow the singular, for convenience in finding books having similar titles.

Books in foreign languages will be found in a classified list at the end of the catalogue.

Readers will always be cheerfully aided by the Librarian or her assistants, in the selection of books, or in seeking any information which the Library contains.

ALMIRA L. HAYWARD,
Librarian.

HOW TO GET A BOOK.

Catalogues will be found on the tables in the waiting-room. Slips of paper on which to write the numbers of such books as you desire are always to be obtained at the Librarian's desk. Copy, in full, upon the slip, the name and residence on the card you are using. Write the number before the period in the first column on the slip; the number after it, in the second column; do not use the third column unless you need to specify which volume of a work you desire. The card and slip, with the book which you return, should be passed in at the receiving desk; the new book will be delivered to you from the Librarian's desk. The slip upon which your book is charged is retained until the book is returned to the Library. The letters "R. L.," at the end of a title, show that the work is for reference only, and cannot be taken from the rooms, except upon certain conditions. (See No. VI. of the Rules and Regulations.)

The Library is arranged by subjects as follows: —

Sections 1 and 11. — (All shelves numbered from 111 to 211, and from 1111 to 1211). — Biography.

Sections 2 and 12. — Essays, Sermons, etc.

Sections 3, 4, 9, and 10. — Fiction.

Sections 5 and 14. — History and Poetry.

Sections 6, 13, and 16. — Poetry, Science, and Art.

Sections 7 and 17. — Travel, Foreign Languages, and Bound Periodicals.

Section 8. — U.S. Public Documents.

If readers will remember this classification, the first figure or figures of the shelf number will give them the key to the character of the book selected.

Juvenile books are on shelves numbered from 433 to 471, and from 911 to 941. A list of books in foreign languages will be found at the end of the catalogue.
